

Rubbish Revival

April 8 - Sept. 24, 2008

Whether it be recycling, water conservation or hybrid fuel sources, there are endless ways for humans to be more eco-conscious.

Rubbish Revival is an art exhibit that focuses on using recycled or found objects to create something entirely new and different.

Using anything from items found at a city dump to leaves fallen from their plant to pieces of someone else's old artwork, local artists have found ways to make their mark on the artistic world by combining traditional and non-traditional mixed media.

This exhibit challenges viewers to take a look at their own ways of living and think about how they might incorporate the Rubbish Revival into their own lives.

Artists: Jeff Falk, Velta Wieters, Lisa von Koch, Ryan Miller, Mary Larson and Tricia Courtney.
